In his Philadelphia speech made last Saturday night, Mr. BLAINE declared his solemn conviction that the defeat of day contains a very spirited cartoon, in DELAMATER would mean a Democratic which Mr. REED is represented as the President in 1892. At present the hope of the Republithe country.

It is but reasonable that the Republicans should indulge this hope. It is believe that the horrors of the last session of Congress will be easily effaced, and it is not imaginable that the people will be satisfied until the McKinley bill is repealed or amended.

If Mr. BLAINE could control congres sional action he would change the law in material particulars, but jealousy of his influence on the one hand and fear of the monopolistic manufacturers who always furnish campaign money on the other will forbid his party making any movement whatever. Already they are inventing explanations that will account for their defeat without involving a repeal of the McKinley bill, but are very unsuccessful. It is impossible for the Republicans to frame a tariff that will be popular. They are not the people's party, and if they attempted to revise the McKINLEY bill the moneygivers would dictate the changes.

The Republicans are in a predicament from which Democratic dissensions alone have come when he will wish he had can extricate them, and we trust our people will be unwilling to render any

The next is to fit our legislative course to the demands of the people, not to the wishes of any away from old man I-Knew-lr. presidential aspirant. With these things done we think the way will be clear for the election of our nominee.

Mr. BLAINE's condemnation of the Mc KINLEY bill was prophetic of its fate, or at least of its party's fate. His declaration that the election of Patrison would mean a Democratic President is entitled to acceptance as truth foretold.

A week ago the wildest dreamer in the land had no thought that the elections of Tuesday would make possible a Democratic majority in the United States Senate. Yet it is certain they have blazed the way to that very result. While the consummation of this much-to be-desired change is still several years off it is no longer that remote possibility it was a little while ago.

After March 4th of next year Democratic influence will begin to assert itself | with some unimportant exceptions, to very perceptibly in the Senate, and with Judge Wellford's, with Judge Leake's the aid of Messrs.
